Wallasey Airman Drowned

On Tuesday, the body of Columba Desmond Boyland, A.M.(I) G.L., of the Royal Naval Service, was washed ashore at Killingholme in the Humber aster being missing a month. The young airman, who was 19 years of age, was the son of Mrs. Boyland, of 70, Serpentine Road, Liscard. He had been in the service for nearly two years, and had been employed on defence stations on the East Coast. The accident occurred when Boyland and another officer were working on a jetty, both being thrown in to the water. A strong current was running and the officer narrowly escaped death in trying to effect a rescue. The remains were brought to Liscard yesterday (Friday) and a Requiem Mass will be celebrated at St. Alban's, Liscard, at 10 a.m. on Monday, prior to the interment at Rake Lane Cemetery.
