News Report

Seacombe Brothers Killed

Great sympathy will be felt for Mr. T. Price, of 24, Harcourt Avenue, Seacombe, who has lost two sons in the recent fighting. Sergeant Harold S. Price, of the Liverpool Pals, was 33 years of age, and was killed on July 1st. He was for over 18 years with Messrs. Langstaffe, Ehrenbery and Co., Liver Buildings, Liverpool, and was of fine physique standing six feet high. Lance-Corporal Oswald William Price belonged to the Royal Inniskillings. His chum, Sergeant Woreling, saw him fall wounded in the abdomen, and he has since been reported as killed. He was with Messrs. Greening and Co., merchants, of Liverpool.

Poignant War Tragedy

Seacombe Brothers Killed

A poignant tragedy of the war will be found in the deaths of two brothers who were killed in action on the same day, July 1st. They are Sergeant Harold S. Price (33) and Private Oswald W. Price (31), of 24, Harcourt Avenue, Seacombe. In the case of the sergeants, who belonged to the Liverpool "Pals," official notification was received from the War Office, but the news of Oswald's death was received from a Sergeant in the Royal Inniskilling Fusiliers, to which regiment deceased was attached. Oswald Price was a Regular, and his time would have expired in September next. Both were members of the Seacombe Presbyterian Church, Brougham Road.
