Killed While Repairing Telephone Lines

Another Wallasey soldier has given his life for his country in Private Thomas Herbert Parry, who was killed by a shell on October 12th whilst engaged in mending the telephone wires in the trenches during an attack on the German lines. The deceased soldier was 23 years of age, and was the second surviving son of Mrs. Parry, 14, Leominster Road, Liscard. Another son is also serving in the Army.

During the early weeks of the war the late Private Parry left the service of the Salt Union Ltd., to join the Army as a member of the King's Liverpool Regiment, and went through his training at Knowsley, Salisbury Plain, and Grantham. Thence he was drafted to last November and took part in the great advance of this summer. He escaped unhurt until called upon to make the supreme sacrifice, his death being mercifully instantaneous.

His loss will be keenly felt by his friends and comrades, to whom he had endeared himself by his genial and kindly disposition.
